

Start Talking Science

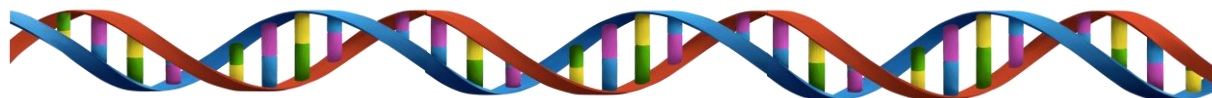

Share. Learn. Connect.

CALL FOR PRESENTERS!

We are looking for individuals in STEM fields to present posters about their research to the general public.

- Communicate your research to an uncommonly diverse audience
- Network with other STEM professionals in both academia and industry
- Look at your research in a new light – stimulate fresh and novel approaches
- Learn about other exciting research projects in the Philadelphia area

Location: Chemical Heritage Foundation
315 Chestnut St, Philadelphia PA 19106

Date: September 28, 2017 from 6-8 PM

Please submit your summary to www.starttalkingscience.com/submit

Summary submission deadline: Fri, May 19, 2017

Start
Talking Science
Philadelphia 2017

Start Talking Science is a free public event where STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) researchers present non-technical posters to the Philadelphia community. We aim to increase the public awareness of – and interest in – cutting-edge, local research in order to make STEM more accessible. We hope to foster insightful conversations and connections while strengthening the communication skills of researchers. For more information, visit www.starttalkingscience.com or e-mail info@starttalkingscience.com.

